UnConference • ʌn'kʌnfərəns : Amplifying teachers' power, autonomy, and voice to determine discussion topics, facilitate conversations, & document actions to solve problems of the practice

Join us on Thursday, April 20th, 2023, from 5:30 - 8:00 PM EST for a FREE virtual UnConference for educators of all experience levels.

The Duke TeachHouse provides a virtual brave space aimed at empowering teacher voice to propose and select topics and facilitate session dialogues around timely and critical issues impacting K-12 schools.

TeachHouse supports facilitators and participants with event logistics and organizes a space where all educators can share their voice and experiences with one another.

Isolation and stress are ever-present in the lives of teachers and students. New and innovative models for networking and collaboration are critical to our profession. Engaged problem-solving and community-based action center the mission and work of the Duke TeachHouse UnConference.

The Fourth Annual TeachHouse UnConference will bring teachers and administrators together to dialogue and problem-solve around issues of policy and practice impacting schools today.
